OXFORD. Whoever sees Oxford for the first time has seen an entirely new thing, and laid in a store of impressions as ineffaceable as they are novel. There is something in the exclusively peculiar character of this city which I can compare to no other city I know, except perhaps to Venice. In each the abundance of the grand and the beautiful in art is such as to amount to a kind of second nature, to which the imagination readily consents. The Gothic glories of Oxford are announced from afar by innumerable grey towers,...
